About this Guide

In the 21st century we are literally flooded with information in all realms of our lives. In our observance of Torah life this is true as well, and particularly so regarding information about the food we eat and its Kosher status. As we near Pesach eve, Kosher consumers are as aware as ever to the endless concerns that affect the Kosher status of products for Pesach. There are tens of guides and lists published by numerous kosher certification agencies and community Vaadei Kashrus.

This guide is unique in that we are not trying to list the pro's and con's of every possible product, nor items that are not approved for Pesach. Rather this is a simple and straightforward list of items that the KVH can recommend to the public as either not needing Kosher for Pesach certification or certified by the KVH as Kosher for Pesach.

It is our hope that the community will find this Pesach Directory useful and uncomplicated.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

what was not included in this directory

Kosher L'Pesach items certified by other agencies:

As standards differ among different Rabbinic authorities regarding what is acceptable for Pesach and what type of supervision is necessary, we believe each consumer should consult their Rabbinical Authority as to which items are acceptable.

Medications & Nutritional Supplements:

We all know that the Torah values life over almost all its commandments. Due to this, many people make the incorrect assumption that medication and nutritional supplements do not need Kosher certification.

It goes without saying there are certain medications that a person must take. However, sometimes there are acceptable alternatives to these medications that meet Kosher standards. The same is true for medications and supplements on Pesach. We believe each consumer should consult their own Rabbinic Authority as to which items are acceptable.

Infant Formulas:

Please note: all infant formulas contain kitnyos, which are forbidden according to most customs, and therefore should only be used in separate utensils.

The following brands have been verified to contain no chometz, and may be used when bearing a regular hechsher, in concentrate liquid form, ready to use liquid form, or powder form: Enfamil, Enfapro, Isomil, Kirkland Signature , Life Brand, Nestle Good Start, Next Step, Parent's Choice, President's Choice, Similac

Non-Food Items:

Essentially all non-food items may be used on Pesach. This includes all cosmetics, soaps, ointments and creams. Nonetheless, many people do not wish to use or even own items that contain actual Chometz.

This category can be divided into three groups:

1. Items coming into contact with food or food utensils or entering one's mouth.
These items are generally treated by consumers as warranting Kosher L'Pesach approval. For example, this is one of the reasons many seek toothpaste which is Kosher L'Pesach.

2. Lotion, soaps etc.

Those that treat these as warranting Kosher L'Pesach approval, do so because the Torah treats lathering as a form of consumption; they consider consumption of Chometz in any form to be forbidden.

3. Neither of the above

As Chometz is forbidden to be owned, many wish not to own Chometz even in non-edible form.

Pet Food:

The prohibition of Chometz includes not only eating Chometz but also owning and benefiting from it. This would include feeding one's pets on Pesach even with food not fit for humans. (This applies throughout the year to pet food containing both milk and meat; it is also forbidden to derive benefit from their mixture.)

Quinoa:

While many Kashrus Authorities have ruled that Quinoa is not considered Kitniyos and therefore may also be used by Ashkenazim on Pesach, it has recently come to light that most of the issues that are associated with Kitniyos also apply to Quinoa.

Among these concerns are:

1. Chometz grains are grown in close proximity to Quinoa.
2. Chometz is stock-piled together with Quinoa while drying.
3. The use of sacks for Quinoa that are also used indiscriminately to transfer all types of grains.
4. Many times Quinoa is packed in the same facilities as Chometz grains.

Therefore, Quinoa requires special Kosher for Passover certification. In addition, due to the above information, it is recommended to visually inspect the Quinoa kernel by kernel.

This year there is Star-K & cRc Kosher certified Quinoa available certified as Kosher for Pesach without the need to visually inspect the Quinoa kernel by kernel. As all the above issues have been addressed.

Green & White Tea:

As Pesach approaches the Kosher consumer is faced with the annual query: what can be bought this year without special Kosher L'Pesach certification? There was a time when consumers as well as certifiers were certain that one could purchase sealed containers of pure ground spices or dried herbs for Passover, provided they had year-round Kosher certification. This mindset even reached a point where dried fruit got thrown into the mix, being regarded as Kosher L'pesach without special certification. It was the commonly held view that pure Green or White Tea also enjoyed this status.

Over time people have come to realize that not everything is as pure as the label claims. Manufacturers are not always required by law to list processing aids, and as a result these and many other ingredients may be added to the product. There are many unlisted additives, emulsifiers, or anti-caking agents that are not Kosher L'Pesach. In addition, many times an inherently Kosher L'Pesach ingredient is packaged or processed on Chometz equipment that would render it unfit for Passover use.

Due to the keen eye of our dedicated Mashgiach Rabbi Issac Yagod, we became aware that Green or White Tea was found to have trace amounts of gluten, or in other words: Chometz. After thoroughly researching the topic, it became apparent that product coming from China in particular, the world's main source of Green & White Tea, may be contaminated.

In speaking with experts in the field, it seems there are a few scenarios that resulted in the tea having gluten content. Among them are the following two issues of note:

1. Chometz was processed or packaged on the same equipment as the tea.
2. The producers deliberately doused the tea leaves with a starch solution to enhance the drying process or to serve as an anti-caking agent.

We randomly chose samples from major brands in the United States and sent them to laboratory to be tested for Gluten. The shocking results - half of the samples from different national brands contained gluten.

While this does indicate a reasonable chance of contamination, since the amounts of gluten detected were miniscule from a Halachic perspective, the Tea may still be permissible for consumption during Pesach because it is rendered insignificant due to the concept of Bitul (Halachic nullification).

King Solomon says: That which has been is that which shall be, and that which has been done is that which shall be done; and there is nothing new under the sun. Is there a thing whereof it is said: 'See, this is new'?--it hath been already, in the ages which were before us. (Ecclesiastics 1:9-10)

This holds true for all these issues of Chometz contamination, across many varieties of seemingly innocuous ingredients. In particular in our case of Tea, there is mention of concern by many a Responsa, some prohibiting it, others allowing it.

As a leading Kashrus agency, the KVH requires lab tests, and extensive tracing of the teas origins back to the source before granting a stamp of approval as Kosher L'Pesach on Green and White teas.

With this recent discovery in mind, the Kosher Consumer should seek guidance on this matter from their family or community Rabbi, as with all other personal Kashrus standards.

Seder Plate Shank Bone:

It is customary to place a shank bone on the Pesach Seder plate. Many chain stores will therefore try and carry Shank bones either as a purchase item or for free. These are generally carried without any Kosher markings. Due to the time frame, any consumer would assume that the store is putting out Shank bones for Passover use, and that they are Kosher. Even more so when they are on display in the kosher meat department or Passover section.

While the sentiment expressed is very generous, the outcome is very problematic. If the bones are indeed Kosher, their kashrus integrity must be preserved in order for Kosher consumers to use them. Additionally it seems that many stores carry bones that are completely non-kosher.

Consumers who cooked or broiled these bones should consult their local Rabbi regarding the Kosher status of their stoves or utensils.
